

GUN BAY

SOUTH AFRICAN WINE

GUN BAY™ IS A SOUTH AFRICAN wine BRAND

The Noon Gun is an English 18-Pounder cannon which has been firing daily at midday over Table Bay in Cape Town since 1806 – a ritual which used to help old sailing ships recalibrate their instruments after sheltering in the bay from the massive Cape storms, and which now informs Capetonians that:

THE BARS ARE OPEN!!

CAPE winelands

The beautiful Cape Winelands are sculpted from ancient slopes and valleys, characterised by magnificent sandstone mountains punched upwards from the restless shifting of tectonic plates aeons ago, with rounded granite foothills merging into undulating shale hillocks.

With the Atlantic Ocean to the west, and the Indian Ocean to the east, there is much truth in the old Cape saying that:

A vineyard
THAT CAN SEE
THE sea IS A
GOOD VINEYARD.

The Gun Bay wines that we produce down at the foot of Africa in this rough-hewn Mediterranean climate lend credence to the adage that true character is formed in the crucible of adversity.
